Curriculum Services

Curriculum Development

The curriculum establishes the primary learning outcomes for programs of study and courses and ensures that knowledge and/or outcomes have been clearly defined for each course and program of study as they relate to the College's mission and purposes.

Faculty members, based on their mastery of their discipline, their own scholarship, and their expertise in curricular areas, shall have collective responsibility for the curriculum and shall be principally responsible for initiating curriculum proposals. The President and administration shall be responsible for acting on curriculum proposals, including making recommendations to the Board of Trustees, the Coordinating Board for Higher Education, and/or the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, as applicable. Curriculum decisions should be consistent with major curricular goals and the strategic directions of the College.

(approved 1/24/05)

Academic Freedom

Academic freedom is fundamental to the protection of the rights of the faculty member in teaching and the rights of the student to freedom in learning. However, these rights are qualified; selected examples of such qualifications are presented below. The Board of Trustees and the Executive Leadership Team fully endorse the following statement on academic freedom from the 1940 Statement of Principles of the American Association of University Professors:

1. The College faculty are entitled to full freedom in research and in the publication of the results, subject to the adequate performance of their other academic duties. Research for pecuniary return should be based upon the Board's policies on sabbatical leave, professional leave, or professional development.
2. College faculty are entitled to freedom in the classroom in discussing their subject; however, they should be careful not to introduce controversial matters that have no relation to their subject.
3. College faculty are citizens, members of a learned profession and representatives of an educational institution. When they speak or write as citizens, they should be free from institutional censorship or discipline, but their special position in the community imposes certain obligations. As scholars and professionals, they should remember that the public may judge them and the College by what they say and do. Therefore, faculty should at all times endeavor to be accurate, exercise appropriate restraint, and show respect for the opinions of others. As private citizens, they should make every effort to indicate they are not speaking as representatives of the College.
4. For sound androgogical reasons, faculty members may decide that it is necessary to use course materials that some students may find offensive. When these materials include explicit representations of human sexual acts or other graphic depictions that could reasonably be expected to be offensive to some students, a faculty member has an obligation to give students, in advance of the presentation, information sufficient to enable individual students to make a knowledgeable choice about whether or not to attend that class period. Where possible, the faculty member should provide reasonable accommodation to that student. Nonetheless, students remain responsible for learning class materials and for completing course requirements. If a course makes considerable use of such material throughout the semester, students should receive, no later than on the first day of class, information sufficient to enable them to make an informed decision about whether or not to take the course.

Appeals concerning academic freedom can be made through the College's Academic Appeals Process outlined in Regulation 2160.
(approved 1/24/05)

Instruction*Intellectual Property

State Fair Community College fosters an environment conducive to the creation, dissemination, discussion and exploration of knowledge. In addition, ownership of academic intellectual property resides with the creator in order to encourage the investment of time, thought, creativity and energy in the development of academic works, including copyright, books, articles, works of art, musical compositions and course materials.

This policy applies to all intellectual property related to the academic works of faculty and students, except in the following circumstances:

1. Works written or produced for grants or contracts that specify that ownership belongs to the funding or contracting party, or for College administrative software.
2. Student-created products that are not claimed by students within 30 days of the close of the semester in which those products were created. After this period, these works belong to the College.
3. If intellectual property developed at the College is commercialized by someone other than the College, the institution retains the right to control whether its name or logo is displayed in association with the work and to require appropriate acknowledgment of institutional support of the creation of the work. The College should be notified of intent to commercialize prior to any commercial agreements.
4. If the creator was assigned, directed or specifically funded by the College to develop the material, the institution can recover direct expenses related to the development of intellectual property from revenue subsequently collected by the creator.
5. Unless otherwise agreed in writing prior to the creation of copyrightable material that is developed for College courses or curriculum, the institution will have for five (5) years non-exclusive, royalty-free, use of the work and the ability to modify the work for its use within the institution so that the College's continued use of such material for educational purposes is not jeopardized.
6. Mediated courseware shall not be sold, leased, rented or otherwise used in a manner that competes in a substantial way with the for-credit offering of State Fair Community College while the creator is employed by this institution, unless that transaction has received the approval of the Vice President for Education and Student Support Services.

7. This policy does not apply to intellectual property developed before this policy is formally approved.

Appeals concerning issues related to intellectual property can be made through the College's Academic Appeals Process outlined in Regulation 2160.

Definition of Credit Hour

Owner – Vice President for Educational and Student Support Services

Contact – Registrar

The semester credit hour is the unit of measure for College-credit course work. The Carnegie unit is generally the guideline used to determine credit hour value, with one hour of credit equated to 750 minutes plus the final exam. Additional hours are required for laboratory, clinical, studio and wellness courses, some career/technical courses, internships, practicums, on-the-job training, theatre and music performance courses in which additional instructional time is required to achieve learning objectives.

For distance learning courses), the Carnegie unit is applicable in that students must meet the same objectives as those delivered in traditional coursework; therefore, students are expected to spend comparable amounts of time in achieving these objectives. However, because learning is difficult to quantify in terms of minutes and hours for distance learning courses, more emphasis is placed upon evidence of student learning. In order to earn credit hours, students must meet stated learning outcomes at a satisfactory level.
