Why Accounting?

SFCC's program provides in-depth coverage of accounting principles, theory and practices, and exposes you to complex problems in the fields of business, cost management, tax, and economics. You'll also have hands-on internship opportunities that will prepare you for jobs such as financial accountant or bookkeeper, income tax preparer, cost management accountant, or payroll specialist.

Many SFCC accounting courses are transferable, so you can receive an AAS degree in Accounting and still pursue a bachelor's degree. You also can earn a bachelor's degree in Accounting on the SFCC campus from Central Methodist University.

Phi Beta Lambda is the collegiate division of Future Business Leaders of America. It focuses on leadership, service, education, and progress, and is offered as an optional one-credit-hour course at SFCC.
